Description

Since the 19th Century a Cabanon (cottage) has occupied the site of the current house in what was then known as La Famarane. The owner would visit by carriage from the village on Sundays to enjoy the spectacular views to the sea and the stunning local surroundings from a place of tranquility. The present main house, in Provencal Mas style, was constructed in the 1990s and has recently been the subject of a total renovation which has created a truly stunning modern house. The property extends to two further cottages. The larger cottage on the same level as the main house has been substantially rebuilt to provide an excellent separate guest suite. The smaller cottage on a level below the main house, with its original stone construction, has retained many of its original features during the development.

Set in eight and a half acres of secluded grounds, and located at the end of its own long drive about 1 km from the village of La Garde Freinet the house sleeps ten people in five double bedrooms all of which have en suite wet-room style shower-rooms.

The house has recently been refurbished to a high standard with wooden wide plank flooring throughout all living areas and bedrooms, contemporary lighting and bathroom fittings. The interior design throughout combines antique artefacts with modern style to provide elegance and comfort.

From the drive the house is accessed along a charming path, across a Zen like terrace, past a pond with goldfish.

OUTSIDE

Set in eight and a half acres of secluded grounds, and located at the end of its own long drive about 1 km from the village of La Garde Freinet. From the drive the house is accessed along a charming path, across a Zen like terrace, past a pond with goldfish.

There are three large terraces all with stunning views to the South. The Zen Terrace is at the east end of the House where ten guests can sit and dine at a table created from a hewn rock in the shade of the overhanging Mulberry tree. To the west there is a covered terrace with comfortable armchairs around a fireplace and beyond this linking the house to the Large Cottage a newly constructed terrace in local stone with seating for twelve around a glass table and a beautiful stone barbecue. All perfect for outside entertaining.

The extensive grounds with various terraced levels and olive groves also include a heated swimming pool of eleven meters by five meters set about a minute's walk from the house, approached by a winding stone staircase, which leads to the pool and surrounding area immediately below a natural rock outcrop. The black swimming pool continues the Zen theme of the upper levels and the house. The views to the Bay of St Tropez from this terrace are unrivaled. The pool has a deep end of around 2m and a shallow end of around 1m and it benefits from sun all day, although you may have to move your sunbeds around in the afternoon to remain in it.
